Oil Well Tubing.

This Superior Tubing is furnished with heavy sockets, and is cut with a vanishing screw thread, corresponding exactly with the thread in the sockets, so that when screwed up there is bearing the whole length of the joint; and the absence of a dead thread on the tube at the end of the socket obviates the liability to break at that point from the vibration caused by the action of the pump.
Each length and socket is stamped with our trade mark, and is carefully tested before shipment with a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch.

Republican Co. Committee Meeting.

The members of the Republican County Committee, will meet at the Court House, in Meadville, on Tuesday the 6th day of February, 1872, at 2 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, fixing the time for holding the coming Primary Meetings, and transacting such other business as may be properly brought before the Committee.

The business being of much importance, it is hoped there will be a general attendance.

Respectfully, &c., C. E. MAGEE, Chairman.
Meadville, Jan. 15, 1872.

The Bolters.

From the New York Times.

A company of "Liberal Republicans" from a portion of the counties of Missouri have called a "Mass Convention" at Cincinnati, on the 6th of May next. Their avowed purpose is to "secure the defeat of General Grant, should the convention in June be so infatuated as to nominate him for a second term." Meanwhile, the correspondents of newspapers unfriendly to the Republican party represent that Senator Schurz is going about declaring that he will not accept the decision of the Philadelphia Convention, if it should be in favor of the renomination of the President, but that "he and those who agree with him will appeal to the country against it." The course is undoubtedly open to him. The Republican party will bind no man to submit to its choice against his will, however he may have been undeservedly honored by it. It will accept without reluctance the duty of defending its candidates and its principles against any who may dispute the fitness of the one or the soundness of the other. No party ever had less need or less inclination to shun the broad light of free discussion, and if the Philadelphia convention shall name General Grant for re-election, Mr. Schurz "and those who agree with him," will find any appeal they may choose to make to the country fully and frankly met.

In the meantime, it is as well to look at the grounds on which Schurz's friends—the "Liberal Republicans"—invite cooperation, and on which, if they have the courage to make it, their appeal to the country is likely to be based. They have undertaken to define those grounds beforehand, in the resolutions to which we have referred. In the first place, they do not, they say, propose, by out or word, to "endanger the rightful sovereignty of the Union, emancipation, equality of civil rights, or enfranchisement." On those points they own to agreement with all good citizens; and as these are cardinal points in the principles of the Republican party, as determined by its past achievements, it is evident that the separate and disorganizing action they propose must be justified by something the Republican party is likely to do or leave undone in the future—on some demands which they make, and feel the need of an independent convention to enforce. These demands their resolutions set forth as follows: They demand equal suffrage for all, and amnesty for all. The first they have, the second they will substantially get next week. If they do not get it absolutely, the only exceptions will be members of Congress and officers of the United States Army or Navy, who deserted their posts to join the rebellion. No sane man proposes to "go to the country" to get those exceptions, if made, removed. They next demand the entire elimination of the element of protection from the tariff. The Republican party is pledged to reduce the taxes so far as is consistent with the needs of the nation, and in so doing so to remove the protective features whenever they have become justly obnoxious to the public sentiment. Schurz's "Liberal Republicans" have no intention of disputing with the party at large on the difference between this measure of reform and clear free trade; they know that the country would go dead against them.

They next denounce, in language nearly identical with that of the Civil Service Report, the evils that require reform in that service, and condemn suppression of investigation. On these two points the Republican party, whoever its candidate may be, will present the record of the present administration without reserve. It is absurd to suppose that the Missouri Republicans contemplate an appeal to the country to decide which is most fruitful in genuine reform, the note of the government, or the more professions of its critics, which their own acts sadly belie. They finally demand that the "growing encroachments of the Executive power," shall be put a stop to, and as specific examples of what ought to be changed in this direction, they cite certain alleged evils, each one of which, if it exists at all, exists by the action of the United States Senate, the branch of the Government established as a check upon the Executive, and regarded from its inherent structure as the representatives of the states, in whatever interests they may have requiring protection against executive encroachments. These four examples are the use of coercion and bribery to ratify a treaty, implying a degradation on the part of the Senate, which few men would like to charge before the American people; the packing of the Supreme Court—an act which could not be accomplished without the corruption of the Senate; the seating of members of Congress not elected by the people—something over which the executive has neither direct nor indirect control; and the resort to unconstitutional laws to cure the Ku Klux disorder—the Ku Klux law, whether unconstitutional or not, being a matter in which the executive only obeyed the vote of a very heavy majority of both Houses of Congress.

We have recited every demand made by these "Liberal Republicans." It will be seen that they are mere pretences. They reveal only by inference the real motive which prompts the proposed independent action. That motive, concealed and yet patent, is simply personal hostility to President Grant. On the justice or injustice of the hostility the Republican Party, if it select Gen. Grant as its leader, will be prepared to give the "Liberal Republicans" ample opportunity to "appeal to the country."

Peter Cooper and His "Institute"

Correspondence of the Worcester Spy.

Three minutes walk from Lafayette place and the Astor library brings one to a public institution differing in every respect save this one. It is also a gift to the people, made also by a single individual.

At the point where two crowded avenues fork, stands a building which I think about the ugliest I ever saw. Only that the windows are not grated, a stranger would set it down as a workhouse or jail. It is redeemed from absolute meanness only by a kind of solidity of structure, indicating that it was built to stand. The building is the "Cooper Institute," of the founder of which I wish to say something.

Peter Cooper was born on Long Island four score and one years ago, that is in 1791. His father was a hatter on a small scale, and Peter helped in the shop. When seventeen years old he was apprenticed to a coachmaker. He invented a machine for shearing cloth. Out of his time as apprentice, he took up business on his own account. He thought there was something in his shearing machines, and took three of them in a wagon up the North river, hoping to find a purchaser. He met with no success until he reached Poughkeepsie. There he met with the owner of a fulling mill, who bought one of the machines for $150, together with the right to use the machine in the county for $250 more. The purchaser of Cooper's shearing machine was Mathew Vassar, whose endowment of the Vassar female college ranks among the greatest of our public institutions founded by individuals. Cooper prospered, at first in a small way; and in 1813, thought himself justified in marrying. Fifty years later, that is in 1863, the "golden wedding" of this couple was celebrated. Of this the Rev. Dr. Samuel Osgood has written a genial sketch. Of the half century intervening, I have no space to speak. Cooper engaged in various manufacturing enterprises, in all of which he was successful. In 1850 he was a rich man. About this time he seemed to have formed the idea of devoting the most of his fortune to the use of the public. Unlike Astor, he proposed to administer upon his own estate. So about 1852 he began the building known as the Cooper institute. In the course of his business he had entered into the manufacture of iron as applied to architectural purposes, especially the production of the beams and girders, which are essential to the erection of an iron building. The institute building had reached its first story, when in 1854 it was suddenly stopped. The strangest accounts of this got into the newspapers of the day. It was said that the northern portico of the edifice encroached a few inches beyond the ground belonging to Cooper; that holders of adjacent property had procured an injunction forbidding the prosecution of the work; and that Cooper determined that if the matter was prosecuted, he would give up his purpose, tear down the portico, and turn the whole structure into a tenement house. All this was a pure invention of the newspapers. The fact was just this: The printing establishment of the Harpers had been burned down, and they wished to replace it by an iron building. Cooper's works were the only ones in the country which could produce the beams and girders, just such as were wanted for the institute; and the works could only produce the iron for one of these structures at a time. Cooper thought best to supply the Harpers; so, while their structure was going up, his stood still.

In time the Harper iron was forged, and work on the Cooper building was resumed. Soon that ugly, but most convenient edifice was constructed. I shall not describe it. It is enough here to say, that the building and all pertaining to it is a gift to the public. The rent from the stores and several other rooms is nearly enough to defray all the expenses of the reading room, schools of art, and many other adjuncts. From time to time Mr. Cooper has added to the original bestowment that the income meets the innumerable expenses. Practically the Cooper Institute is the noblest private benefaction for public good which the world has yet seen. The noblest is this, that it directly benefits a greater number than any other. It is, to quote the words of Dr. Osgood, "a great university of the people. In the evening the working classes who are occupied with labor during the day, throng the class rooms, and a sagacious eye can detect the talent that is determined to come to itself in spite of adverse circumstances, and make up by hard study, when the day's toil is over, for the neglect of early schooling." In a word, the Astor library is mainly intended for the few, the Cooper institute for the many, while both are so noble in design, it would be invidious to attempt to say which is the nobler. Both are good, and perhaps it would not be possible to combine in one institution the special good features of each. Astor's good work was posthumous. He never saw, perhaps he never cared to see, the good which he bid done. Cooper, of a more loving temper, chose to do his work himself. He has this one great reward, that there is, I believe, in New York no one man so thoroughly loved as Peter Cooper. When he passes from us there will be such an ovation as no living man has seen. It is quite well understood that after having made just and honorable provision for those belonging to him, the remainder of the accumulations of a long and successful life have been given away. When Peter Cooper dies he will not die a rich man, saving only in the love of his fellow citizens.

ELI MARKS TWAIN—THE LECTURE—MARKS BIOGRAPHY PIGEON SHOOTING

From the New York Commercial Advocate.

FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL, Jan. 25.

The Rev. Mark Twain let out some religious and otherwise statistics last night at Steinway. He did it for the Mercantile Library. They were most all moral statistics. The only immortal thing about the lecture was the presence of Mark himself. Mark is such a kussed homely fellow, that he ought to get some man to deliver his lecture for him. There would be a fortune in it if Mark could just write, and let the other fellow—stand and deliver.

The audience were ready to laugh before Mark commenced. They had their laughs all "cut and dried" before Mr. Twain struck the platform. When he did come out, six men on the platform burst their trowsers buttons and thirty-four men arose in their seats to laugh. They never stopped laughing till Mark commenced his lecture; and after that they were—as solemn as the grave. The moral lesson conveyed in Mark's lecture was very immoral. He said he never played cards unless he could make something at it. He said he knew from experience that lying was a bad practice, and then he turned around and—looked straight at the reporters. Still he continued, "I am better than George Washington, for he couldn't tell a lie, while I can, but don't want to."

Then he went right on, telling about buying a horse in Nevada for $70 and selling him with hay which cost $800 per ton. He said he was brought up to tell the truth, and always told the truth, through life—at intervals. He was careful in his statistics throughout the lecture and told us frankly that he hadn't been in the penitentiary, but he didn't know why.

He laid when he said the only game in Nevada was wild mountain sheep and "Seven-up," for General Nye very often indulges in "brag." When Dr. Twain said he weighed a ton on the Nevada hay scales, I believe he told the solemn truth. I have weighed fifty tons myself on hay scales up in Litchfield county. But Mark and his friends stood on the scales with him to see that there was no cheating.

The most pathetic part of the lecture was the Rev. Dr. Twain's description of his duels and fights in Nevada, and how he borrowed a man's barn door when the man was absent, for a target. At this point the audience were melted to tears.

I asked a lady what she was crying for?

"Why, because the homely man didn't get shot," she replied, as the hot tears continued to roll down her cheeks.

The Rev. Mr. Twain says he was engaged three years in Nevada, collecting the statistics for the lecture, and many of them came from New York at that. The prisoner at the bar has a fine face. He does not look guilty, nor look like a man charged with a great crime. The sympathy of the audience was with him during the whole trial.

BIOGRAPHY OF MARK TWAIN, THE ACCUSED.

The Rev. Dr. Mark Twain is a Turk. He was born in the interior of Ireland. His father followed the pursuits of patriotic husbandry—he raised string beans. Notwithstanding the tyranny of England his beans sold readily, and Mark was apprenticed at an early age to a boiler maker to learn the art of photography. His father, known as Honest Farmer Twain, says Mark made a great noise in the world while at the boiler business, and he was sent for by Napoleon to accompany him in his campaign up the Mississippi river. Subsequently young Twain did efficient service in the Crimea, under Gen. Scott. During the battle of Inkermann he was lost, causing great grief to his regiment, but they afterward found him behind an empty barrel.

He weighs 536 pounds, and his fists are very hard indeed. Henry Ward Beecher, in his entertaining work entitled "The Early Days of Mark Twain," relates that when Mark was four years old he became vexed at a grind stone and battered it to pieces with his naked fists. The story that young Twain called his father an "old kuss" and threw cobble stones at his sick grandmother, Mr. Beecher says is false.

Since Mr. Twain's residence in America, he has conducted the lying department of a daily newspaper. He is the father of twelve children—all his own. During the late war Mr. Twain flew to arms—Mrs. Twain's. He fought bravely on both sides—sometimes with McDowell and sometimes with Beauregard.

In religion he is a High Church Episcopalian. He is always high. He says he don't care a —— for religion, and that Church comes nearest to his belief. He believes in the universal salvation of all men—provided he can pick the men.

He would be a better man if he looked at things more seriously; but this, it is said, he cannot do. They say he made fun at his grandfather's funeral, and got the mourners to laughing so that the funeral had to be postponed.

He is known in Nevada as the Great American Liar. He commenced lying when a mere infant, in his mother's lap, and he has been lying ever since. Mark, mr, Twain is Eli Perkin's friend, and he only speaks of his early lying as an accomplishment that Washington even didn't have, according to his own confession. When Twain dies I expect to make a good deal of money out of his biography. It will sell well. Everybody will be sold.

In politics he is a Custom House Republican, with Tammany tendencies. I like him, and am ready to go his bail all the year round. People will read his books with great pleasure—after he is dead, provided he dies in any decent kind of season. He is now 180 years old—in sin.

On reading this biography over it occurs to me that some over-nice people may think that I would question Mark Twain's veracity. Not at all. I believe he would always tell the truth, if left to himself. But his audience—well, I've got no more to say.

A Frenchman's Opinion of English Women.

From the London Saturday Review.

Of our country women M. Taine writes more favorably—at least as far as the physical part of them is concerned. Nature has done everything for them; and their simple, wholesome habits of life have given Nature fair play. If they only had minds—or rather, esprit (for M. Taine allows a certain amount of common sense and practical intelligence), and knew how to dress and walk they would be perfect. In figure and complexion and in all the beauty which belongs to good health, they beat their French sisters. But M. Taine is rather disposed to agree with Hamilton's sarcasm on Madame de Wetenhall—that, though she had a pretty face, it was always the same face, which might have been taken out of a case in the morning and put back at night, without having been used all day. He is also at one with Hawthorne as to the "beefness" of our matrons. He noticed even young women with red noses, and the more mature ones suggested bifteck cru. But it is their style of dressing that is most exasperating and intolerable. M. Taine makes a remark about his own country women which perhaps helps to explain the alleged insipidity of which he accuses their English sisters. The former, he says, are perpetually striving to attract attention—always au port d'armes et à la parade, while the others have other things to think of—their families, housekeeping, works on political economy from "Modèle's," and other grave pursuits; and, so far from yielding to coquetry, they are rather careless and deficient of the graces. M. Taine might perhaps be suspected of a little sarcasm in his description of the serious and useful literature which Englishwomen delight to study in their leisure hours, and in his assumption that fashion books and novels are despised. But he shows a hearty appreciation of the pure, unaffected simplicity which, in spite of the girl of the period and her propagandists, is still the characteristic of a large body of our country women. He is surprised that our young ladies should walk in stout, thick-soled boots. But nothing struck him so much as the spirit of frank companionship in which young men and women meet in society.

"I can testify from what I saw of the great liberty they enjoy. I saw many young ladies in the morning in Hyde Park who had come for a ride, attended only by a groom. In the country, where I had been on a visit two days, I was asked to give my arm to a young lady of the house, to conduct her a mile off. S——, who spent a year here, finds this loyal and free intercourse charming. 'Come and see me,' said a gentleman to whom he was introduced. 'I want you to know my girls!' They are the most amiable and honest companions. You ride with them, you go with them to archery meetings, you talk familiarly to them of everything or nearly everything, you laugh with them without arrière-pensée; it would be impossible even for fat to treat them otherwise than sis

Stokes was arraigned to plead in the court of Oyer and Terminer this morning. His lawyer, Graham, said he intended to move to quash the indictment on the grand jury, who had been given the case, but received no counsel's jury had given their verdict. The counsel kept back the fact as to who her the deceased was armed, and he otherwise exceeded his authority, contrary to law. In the attempt to secure a more decisive verdict the papers were clandestinely transferred to the grand jury by the Coroner, and in violation of the previous promise placed upon the jury a lawyer named Man field, whose motives were prejudiced.

Mr. Graham alluded to the point taken by ex-judge Fullerton in obtaining the indictment against Stokes, saying Fullerton became acquainted with all of Stokes' private affairs, as his counsel. The Stokes having refused to pay him the enormous counsel fee of five thousand dollars, sued him and subsequently for action. He knowledge to secure the indictment of Stokes. The foregoing were put before the court by Graham in the shape of affidavits. District Attorney Garvey stated that he did not propose to put in contradictory affidavits. THE DRAKE AMENDMENT.

The Supreme Court to-day delivered an opinion against what is known as the Drake amendment, which offer prohibits the reception by the Court of Claims of evidence of amnesty and pardon on the part of suitors, but allows the opposite party to refer such amnesty and pardon as evidence of disloyalty, unless at the time of receiving the pardon and amnesty, the recipient protested against the implication of previous disloyalty contained in the official document of the Court adverse to it, in the proclamation of Lincoln in 1863, which granted amnesty and pardon on condition of taking the oath, etc., with restoration of property, excepting to slaves. The Court asserts full power of the President as to granting pardon and amnesty, the acceptance of which cannot, it says, be rendered of no effect by the legislation of Congress. In this case the court claims and rendered a judgment for the claimant, and an appeal is taken from to this court, and it is directed to dismiss the appeal, it is found the judgment must be filed and issues of the pardon executed to the interests of the claimant. This cannot be done without allowing that the Legislature may prescribe rules of decision to the judicial department of the government in cases pending before it. It is said that Congress has inadvertently passed a statute which separates the Legislature from the judicial power, and it is of vital importance that these powers be kept separate. Congress has already provided that the Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction of judgments and of the court of claims, on appeal, and it cannot be prescribed a rule in conformity with which the court must deny to itself the jurisdiction thus conferred, because its decision, in accordance with the settled law, must be adverse to the government and favorable to the suitor. The motion to dismiss denied, and the judgment of the Court of Claims affirmed. The Chief Justice delivered an opinion that justices Miller and Bradley's dissention was on the ground that there was no interest in the former owner of property under the captured and abandoned property act, when the property had been sold and the proceeds paid into the treasury. They concur as to the constitutional question involved, but—and by the amendment in question, Kentucky vs. Stokes—they say of the Treasury. This is an application for a mandamus made by the Commonwealth of Kentucky to compel the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the war claims of the state. A rule to the Secretary to show cause why the writ should not issue was now ordered. Dismissed and reversed from the Circuit Court of Alabama, the question arose, when the war began and when it term named, the court for purposes of this case, assumed the proclamation of the blockade to be to commencement of war, and take the position that the President issued April 3, 1866, declaring the war terminated in various states, including Alabama, was termination of the war as to that state.

In the court of claims to-day, Judge Knott delivered an opinion in the court, trying the motion of the United States for a new trial in the case of John Sykes, involving about $27 000 worth of cotton seized at Atlanta, Georgia.

The motion was made under the statute enacted a year ago, authorizing the government, within two years after the decision of the case, to move for a new trial, upon the discovering of fraud, wrong, or injustice to the United States and this decision is important as giving the construction of the court to the statute in regard to the diligence required on the part of the government and kindred questions.

Chief Justice Drake and Judge Loring dissented.

By Mr. Stevenson, refunding to distillers the sum paid for tax motive; also utilizing burned timber on the public lands of Michigan and Wisconsin.

By Mr. Beck, to allow half of the custom duties to be paid in legal tenders.

By Mr. Voorhees, placing printing type and material on the free list.

By Mr. Armstrong, of Dakota, for the organization of a new Territory west of the northern portion of Dakota.

Mr. Hubbard asked leave to offer a resolution instructing the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds to inquire into the propriety and feasibility of procuring for the United States the title to Independence Hall and square, in Philadelphia. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Gove asked leave to introduce a resolution for an investigation into the authority by which Seneca sandstone had been used in the foundation of the new State Department building, contrary to the order of the Joint Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. Negley objected.

Mr. Burdet offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Manufactures to inquire whether the materials for steam-ship building can be supplied by the United States, and as to the difference in prices between domestic and foreign materials. Adopted.

Mr. Dawes called up the Senate concurrent resolution for a final adjournment on the 29th of May. He waived a expression of the will of the House on the subject, so that it should be understood in good time.

Mr. Farnsworth wished the resolution be referred to one of the leading committees, and let that committee be responsible for its report. He hoped to be able to explain as day, that the adoption of the resolution meant no revision of the tariff at this session, and no revision of taxation. It meant that the House should do the bidding of certain gentlemen, and pass some appropriation bills, so that they might turn their department and let the members go home with their finger-in their mouths, and their mouths in the air.

Mr. Garfield said he was not ready to see a time of the session fixed for the 29th of May. He favored a reference of the resolution either to the Committee on Ways and Means, or the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. Brooks, of New York, reminded the chairman of the Committees on Ways and Means, Dawes, that the committee would not be prepared to report a bill for the revision of the tariff and internal revenue before next April. He thought, therefore, that the adoption of the resolution at this time was equivalent to saying that the government would continue to collect from the people a hundred million a year beyond its possibilities, and there was important subject which Congress should pass before adjournment. They were assumptions of a cash payment and the relations of the United States with Spain and England.

Mr. Dawes did not admit that the Committee of Ways and Means would not be ready to report a bill to reduce taxation before April next. He thought it might be done much sooner.

Mr. Butler, of Massachusetts, favored the adoption of the resolution, believing that a short session would be beneficial to the council and the interests of the country.

Mr. Holman argues against the adoption of the resolution, and suggested a substitution for it, declaring it to be the sense of the House that Congress should not adjourn till after a revision of the tariff, a reduction of the internal revenue and a reform of the civil service abuses.

Mr. Butler, of Massachusetts, asked Mr. Holman to include, also, the establishment of civil rights of all men.

Mr. Holman said he had no objection to that, although the gentleman from Massachusetts had had four years with all the power of Congress in his hands to secure the civil rights, and if he had not done it, it was his duty. He favored a reference to a responsible committee.

Mr. Cox said that this was a party movement, and they all knew it was to carry the President-ial election.

Butler—Then it is very clear that we ought to pass it. [Laughter.]

Cox thought he would amuse the gentleman (Butler) out. He did not think that the members of Congress should imitate other government officials and go philandering all over the country instead of staying at Washington and attending to their business.

Mr. Buckham, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, argued in support of the resolution, took it for granted that the legislation of the country had been conflicted to the Republican majority, and that that party would take the responsibility of adjournment.

Mr. Maynard supported the resolution, and showed that several Democrats had already voted for an earlier adjournment.

After further discussion the resolution was, on motion of Mr. Farnsworth, referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. Yeas 120; nays 77. Then moved all voted for the reference of the resolution.

Mr. Getz offered his resolution of inquiry as to the use of Seneca sandstone in the new building for the State Department, any it was agreed to, there being only five negative votes.

On motion, Mr. Price's educational bill was made the special order for next Friday and the following Tuesday, when the vote is to be taken.

Mr. Garfield offered a resolution requesting the Senator to return to the House a bill passed last week, making pensions commence from the date of discharge, or death of a soldier. In connection with it he sent to the clerk's desk, and had read a communication from the Commissioner of Pensions, stating that the bill would involve an expenditure of $30 500,000, and he said that at least one-tenth of that sum would find its way into the pockets of thieves, sharks, and vagabonds, in the shape of claim agents. After some opposition by Mr. Moore, of Indiana, and after considerable discussion the House refused to suspend the rules and adopt the resolution.

House adjourned.

SENATE.

Mr. Sumner called attention to the omission from the Globe of Hamlin's suggestion on Friday, that before voting for Sumner's equal rights amendment, the Senate should sing "Old Hundred." He said he was now in, which was made at the request of Hamlin, rendered his own subsequent remarks unintelligible.

Mr. Cole called up the bill leasing a portion of the Presidio reservation to San Francisco for a public park.

Mr. Cragin wished to examine the bill. It went over.

The morning hour was consumed in the discussion of the resolution for the arrest of Gist and Camp, who refused to give testimony before the Ku Klux Committee in South Carolina.

Mr. Bayard, for the Committee on Private Land Claims, reported without amendment a bill referring to the jurisdiction on court claims to have and determine a suit of Carendolet versus the United States.

Bill were introduced and referred as follows:

By Mr. Blair, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay for cotton seized by agents of the United States after June 30, 1865.

By Mr. Howe, allowing the homestead settlers and the heirs of homesteads settlers burned out in the state of Michigan and Wisconsin, till the 1st of January, 1873, to rebuild on and recover their homestead lands.

The amnesty bill was next in order, but was postponed till to-morrow, with the understanding that no vote would be taken.

The apportionment bill then came up.

Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, resumed his remarks. He preferred the Senate substitute to the House bill, and said the House bill would do injustice to at least fifteen states, and favored large states at the expense of the small. The question was on the first amendment reported by the Judiciary Committee, providing that the House shall consist of its present number, 243 instead of 283, as proposed in the House bill.

Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, moved to amend so as to make the number 292. Lost. Yeas 17, nays 31.

Mr. Edmunds again argued that the House bill would violate the constitutional requirement that there shall be an equality of representation, and expressed his opinion that exact justice would be nearest approximated by referring to the rule, which was followed up to 1841, of disregarding fractions altogether.

The other amendments reported by the Committee were rejected, except the last, which was adopted, yeas 27, nays 25.

The section provides that should any State, after the passage of the act, deny or abridge the right of any of its male residents to vote at any election named in the 14 h amendment, except for participation in the rebellion, or other crime, the number of its representatives shall be proportionately reduced.

Mr. Pomeroy moved to strike out the fifth section, which prohibits the admission of any new States till it has sufficient population to entitle it to one Representative. Lost—24 to 22.

Mr. Patterson moved to amend so as to give Vermont and New Hampshire three members each. Lost—48 to 9.

Other amendments were offered and rejected.

The bills having been considered in the committee, it was reported to the Senate, and the amendment made concurred in. 34 to 19. The bill passed, all the Senators voting aye, except Messrs. Edmunds, Hamilton, of Missouri, Morrill, of Vermont, Norwood, Patterson, Salsbury and Vickers.

Intelligence was received here today of the total destruction yesterday, by an earthquake, of Subalashie, a town in Russia. From the details received of the terrible disaster it is learned that the shock were very protracted, and that many lives were lost.

PARIS, Jan. 29.

A manifesto has been issued by Count De Chambord to the French people. The count claims, as of yore, the right to divine, and says, I shall never abdicate my claim to the throne of France. I shall never forsake the monarchial principle, which have preserved France for forty years, and which is the last hope of France. Greatness and liberties, Czarism and anarchy, threaten France, because her salvation is sought in personal questions, and not in principles. I shall ever uphold the flag of France, and aid in restoring the ancient prestige to her armies. Time presses and a resolute action is urgent. The happiness of France is my only ambition, and I will never consent to become a revolutionist while I am legitimate King. The Committee of Patronage of the movement for raising a subscription to pay the German indemnity, have to-day announced their preference for a maximum loan of four milliard francs.

BOSTON, JAN. 29.

A Special Call to Preach.

The late elder John Smith, of Kentucky, who died recently at an advanced age, was one of the most eccentric wits of the Ohio river, a true gentleman. He was universally loved. Calling out Kentucky and the West by the sobriquet of "Raccoon Smith." While still in the Baptist ministry, and attending one of the annual meetings of the body, a tall, lank, green specimen of humanity presented himself before the association as a candidate for the ministry. He was not regarded as being of entirely sound mind, and labored under the hallucination that he was specially "called to preach," and kept constantly importuning the association to grant him the necessary license. In addition to his partially unsoundness of mind, and which was the last hope of France. Greatness and liberties, Czarism and anarchy, threaten France, because her salvation is sought in personal questions, and not in principles. DR. GOTTLIEB FISCH'S BITTERS.

(Shape of the bottle.)

This preparation of the great Scientist, Dr. Gottlieb Fisch, of Germany, is based on the fact that not all materials of the body are derived from Food, so all Vital Force, or Health, is derived from the Force stored up in Food. Dr. Fisch's Bitters enables the System to liberate and appropriate these Forces, creates Appetite, cures Dyspepsia, with its resulting Debility and lack of Nervous Energy; so tones the Stomach and Liver as to make Constipation and Biliousness impossible; reinforces the System so it can throw off bad results of changing climate, water, &c., and better endure the demands often unexpectedly made on its Force and Energy. Ladies in delicate health, aged persons, and all emaciated and weak after sickness, will rapidly strengthen by using this great preparation.

REMARKABLY COLD WEATHER—The severe cold weather experienced here for the past two days is remarked by everyone, but it does not compare with what they have had at Fort Garry, Manitoba The thermometer there is forty-five degrees below zero, and the mercury has been frozen solid Two minutes' exposure of the naked hands to this atmosphere is sufficient to freeze them The thermometer has been so long in getting up to zero, that the people are anxious that it should rise to that point for a day or two just to know how it feels It is dangerous to travel in that country without being thoroughly wrapped up

The origin of the fire is at present involved in mystery. The house and furniture were owned by Mr James Plunkett, the son, and are a total loss No insurance

WANTED in every family, Vail's U S P Bitters

We present in another column, a draft of the amendments to the City Charter, as prepared by the Charter Amendment Committee, and which are to be submitted to the Common Council, at their next regular meeting, to-morrow (Wednesday) afternoon They are given to the public to-day, in order that our citizens may see that they are substantially the same, as those prepared and agreed upon by the Common Council, and the Citizens Committe last Spring, and subsequently ratified at a citizens meeting. It will be seen that this supplement legalizes the election and confirms all the acts of the Auditor until his successor is duly elected, or until this supplement goes into effect at the next regular Charter election.

Section two of the Supplement restores to their original form, those provisions of the amendments of last winter, which related to the office of Auditor, its powers and duties One or two other sections have been altered so as to allow of a reasonable and consistent interpretation, and so as to facilitate the practical enforcement of the workings under the instrument, but these amendments do not in the least affect the general character or any of the special features of the amendments as they previously existed.

THE ACCIDENT ON THE VALLEY ROAD SATURDAY MORNING—Yesterday morning we gave a short account of the terrible accident which occurred to the accommodation train on the Valley road, a short distance above Scrubgrass.

It has transpired since, that the cause of the accident must have been a loose tire on one of the driving wheels of the engine. Workmen were engaged yesterday in taking the locomotive to pieces in the endeavor to save as much from the wreck as possible. During this operation they discovered that one of the driving wheel tires was loose, which could not have been made so by the fall, and it seems to be the opinion of railroad men that this was the cause of the accident.

The wounded are getting along very well, and it is likely all will recover, though it is feared Mr King, of Franklin, will not survive, as he is injured internally, which causes profuse spitting of blood

Mr Rockwell, of the firm of McCray, Rockwell & Co, Oil City, is still at the farm house of Mr J. R Williams, on the opposite side of the river from the scene of the disaster. He has two ribs broken, but is not otherwise injured He is getting along nicely, and is in a fair way of speedy recovery

WILL purify your blood, Vail's U. S P Bitters

THE PANSTEREORAMA — This fine work of art, exhibited for the first time at the Parshall Opera House last evening, is well worthy the inspection of every one As one of the greatest historical events of the century, the burning of Chicago stands prominently forward, and has a deep interest to all classes of people The views of the ruins are evidently correct representations drawn true to nature, without exaggeration, and leave a most forcible and vivid impression of reality on the mind which it would be difficult to derive from any other source The views are nearly all more or less architectural, and bear the mark of artistic skill in their execution The exhibition will remain here two nights longer, and on Thursday afternoon a matinee will be held For particulars see advertisement in another column.

VAIL'S U S P Bitters will aid digestion

ANOTHER RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—We are called upon to-day to chronicle another railroad accident, but one not attended with any more serious damage than the destruction of a freight car and the delay of a passenger train Yesterday morning as freight train No 20, which leaves here at 11 35, was nearing Petroleum Centre, a wheel of one of the freight cars broke, and the trucks left the track In this condition the car was dragged about 150 yards, and when the train was stopped there was only two wheels under the car, the remaining six being strewn along the track, in some cases the wheels broken close off from the axles When the noon express reached the spot the car, which was loaded with shingles, was lying athwart the track It was soon removed and the express allowed to pass, after having been delayed half an hour

The rehearsal will commence at eight o'clock Admission twenty five cents The members will assemble at seven o'clock

KEROSENE THROWERS—In New York lately over one hundred and fifty valuable dresses and cloaks are known to have been ruined in the street by malicious persons pouring kerosene over them A burly looking ruffian, the other day, was caught in the act by the Broadway police He carried a long, slender tin can in his pocket for the purpose This crime has become so prevalent that the severest penalty should be attached to it Public flogging would be about the most effectual remedy

VAILS U S P Bitters will cure you.

A MAN by the name of Winslow, who was engaged near the National wells, Pleasantville, teaming, died in that place Friday night, very suddenly, of heart disease He had no family there, but one in Jefferson county, N Y, where he came from about a year ago He was about forty-five years of age, and apparently rugged and healthy He belonged to the Masonic fraternity His remains were sent to his former home yesterday

A LETTER OF INQUIRY ABOUT OIL STOCK.

BROOKLYN, Jan 28

Editors Morning Herald

Please to excuse the liberty I take in writing to you, my clergyman advised me to write to you, he said you were gentlemen and that you would give me the information I wish

In the year 1865 I bought some shares in the New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore Consolidated Petroleum and Mining Company, J S Clark was President I am a poor woman, I have never been able to find out anything about the company since, but I know their oil wells were somewhere in your neighborhood If you know anything about them, or if you would give me any directions where I could apply for information, you will be not only doing a favor but a great charity I remain, respectfully, ANNIE BRYES.

Direct in care of Mrs Mary Caddell, 127 Schonectady avenue.

REMARKS—Not possessing the information asked for, nor the means at hand for obtaining it, we take the liberty of giving publicity to our correspondent's letter for inquiry in the faint hope that it may fall under the eye of some one who may know something of the history and fate of "the New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore Consolidated Petroleum Company," and will charitably acquaint her with the facts

But we fear this company, like a thousand others of sounding title, is an exploded bubble and vanished into thin air long ago. If it were any consolation to "the poor woman," we might state that she is only one of a number whose "name is legion," who have drawn blanks in the great petroleum lottery of 1865, and whose fortune or pittance has gone where the woodbine twineth and flowing wells and dry holes are unknown

THE CHEAPEST BUILDING MATERIAL

Editors Morning Herald

Under the above heading appeared, a few days since, in the daily, and also published in the WEEKLY HERALD of January 23d inst, a very comprehensive, able, instructive, interesting and useful article There is but little room for doubt that artificial stone will take the place of brick, in constructing the walls of buildings within a short time as almost universally the plan, (originated I believe in the Old Country), has been adopted of building outside walls and the better class of dwelling houses, and public buildings open or hollow from bottom to top These stones are most admirably adapted for arches, spanning openings, ornamental, and all classes of fine work They can also be furnished much cheaper than natural stone can be quarried and dressed In this city, however, as yet, the hollow walls have been but little adopted, but instead, the inside of the outer walls are furrowed out and lathed for plastering, which is more expensive, less substantial, and inferior in almost every particular, if the inside of the hollow walls are laid to plumb and line, as they should be.

NATURAL STONES

of a superior quality for building purposes, abound in such inexhaustible quantities throughout the oil regions of Pennsylvania, and especially about this city They are so easily broken and prepared for the walls, so rich and beautiful in appearance, when properly laid, and painted as they should be, that artificial stone will be slow to supplant them, in the common walls of buildings in this place or neighboring villages

In the article above referred to is the sentence. "The cost of quarrying is comparatively trifling, but its handling and bringing into a suitable condition for building, places it much beyond the cost of the ordinary run of houses"

This state of things need not be, if the people who are building, and those contemplating building permanent fireproof houses, stores, and manufacturing establishments But will it? Those workmen who make it a specialty in rearing these elevations of natural stone would be attracted here with the simple appliances for moving and handling, and stone buildings of enduring strength and beauty can be built certainly as cheap, if not for less, than brick

STONE CUTTERS AND BRICK LAYERS residing in this city are as expert and skillful as need be found in any place, but workmen of stone elevations find more remunerative wages where stone buildings are erected

SETTLING, SPRINGING AND CRACKING OF WALLS

Since being here I have often heard it asserted that the ground in this city and the surrounding country is of such peculiar composition that high, massive, towering walls of stone cannot be built without these dangers. I beg leave to dissent, and pronounce this opinion erroneous Having examined the ground in most parts of the city where it has been dug into, I am sure that if excavated and prepared as I suggested in a previous communication, where the walls are to be erected, by the time the structure is completed, it will have become an artificial rock, if not as hard as adamant, at least as hard as natural stone, impervious to the action of water, or dampness, and the walls (comparatively speaking) may be elevated to the clouds, or certainly as high as they can be made of practical use, without any of the dangers spoken of This then would be such a foundation as the wise man built upon, spoken of by the Savior, St Mathew, 7, 24 "When the rain descended, the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not, for it was founded upon a rock"

VAILS U S P Bitters are an officinal preparation

THE first annual exhibition of the Western Pennsylvania Poultry Society commences to-day at City Hall, Pittsburgh, and continues afternoon and evening until the following Saturday. A liberal premium list is being prepared, and other inducements have been thrown out to secure the entry of the best breeds of poultry in the West, and it is the determination of the Executive Committee to leave nothing undone to make the exhibition attractive to the general public and profitable to the exhibitors of the feathery stock As Pittsburgh is acknowledged to be one of the best markets for pure bred poultry, the greatest interest is manifested in this forthcoming exhibition of the association. Already the entries embrace over one thousand chickens of all breeds.

Special Correspondence of the Herald.

REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

The Republican State Central Committee met at two o'clock this afternoon, in the parlors of the Lochiel Hotel. The larger portion of the members arrived here yesterday and last night, and when the meeting was called to order, every county in the state was represented, with but two exceptions The time for the next Republican Convention was fixed on Wednesday, April 10 h, and the place this city. The meeting of the convention will be held in the Hall of the House of Representatives. The convention will be composed of one hundred and thirty-three delegates, to represent the State in the same manner as the members of the Legislature. The candidates to be nominated are Auditor General, Supreme Court Judge, and Auditor General, (should the Legislature authorize the election of the latter) Senatorial and Representative delegates, to represent the State in the Republican National Convention, will also be elected. Among the resolutions passed was the following, in reference to the special election on Tuesday next

Resolved, That this committee desires to urge upon the Republican voters of the Fourth Senatorial District the great importance of the special election for Senator in that district, on the 30 h instant Upon the result of that election depends the political complexion of the Senate—that body having been left a tie by the death of Mr Connell—and the Republicans of the entire State are looking with deep interest to the maintainance of the integrity of the Republican organization in that district by the success of the regular Republican nominee, Henry W Gray" The action of the Committee throughout was harmonious, and the reports from the different portions of the State indicate a gratifying Republican organization and sentiment

THE FOURTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT

The reports received here to day from the Fourth Senatorial District in Phila, are of a character to render the election of Gray, the Republican party nominee, a matter of almost certainty The members of the Republican Central Committee, from that city, state that the party organization remains nearly intact in spite of the violent efforts of the so called reformers to break it The caucus is very animated, more meetings being held nightly in the district Gray and his supporters, are working vigorously through the party organization, while M Clure, and his adherent, are obliged to carry on a sort of guerilla warfare, that is not very promising of success

LEGALIZED QUACKS

A resolution has passed the Senate which sets forth that it has been charged in the New York Tribune, and various other papers, that certain medical colleges chartered under the laws of Pennsylvania and located in Philadelphia, named respectively the "Philadelphia University of Medicine," and the "Eclectic Medical College of Pennsylvania," have been engaged in selling and issuing medical diplomas to persons not qualified to use the same, and who have not been educated to the practice of medicine, therefore a special committee of five is authorized to examine into all the facts concerning the alleged corrupt issuing of medical diplomas, by any medical college existing under the laws of the State, with power to send for persons and papers The committee appointed consists of Messrs Randall, Strang, Billingfelt, Humphreys and Nagle

The facts set forth in the resolution are notorious These institutions, incorporated by the State, have for some years been selling diplomas, and creating M Ds for a stipulated price, and have even extended their operations into Europe Their modus operandi has been shown up a number of times through the public press, but for some reason legislative action has not heretofore been invoked. If the committee go into a full investigation of the matter, some things will likely be developed that will form subjects for interesting reading

STATE EDITORIAL CONVENTION

The State Editorial Convention met in the Senate Committee rooms this afternoon, and are in session this evening, but all the business that will be transacted has propably been done About fifty members are present, and though the results have not been very important, the meeting has been an interesting one. H G Smith, of the Lancaster Intelligencer President, and R S Menamin, of the Printer's Circular, Philadelphia, Secretary, were re-elected for the coming year A resolution was passed urging upon the Legislature the propriety of passing a bill to so modify the present libel law as to permit the facts to be pleaded in justification A resolution was also passed asking for the enactment of a law, requiring an equal division of the county printing between the two papers of opposite politics having the largest circulation It was decided to have an editorial excursion during the coming summer, and the question of time and locality was referred to the officers of the convention The discussion was, however, decidedly in favor of going to Erie, and thence taking an excursion through the oil regions

SELLING LIQUOR ON ELECTION DAYS

The House to-day passed, by a vote of 68 ayes to 21 nays, a bill to prevent the sale of intoxicating drinks on election day The bill provides that any person buying, selling or giving away intoxicating drinks on special or general election days shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be subject to imprisonment for not more than one hundred days and a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and costs, at the discretion of the court. The decided majority in favor of the bill in the House is indicative that it will pass the House and become a law during the present session PENN

EXTENSIVE OIL FIRE ON THE PENNSYLVANIA CENTRAL RAILROAD—About ten days ago, Conemaugh, one of the principal depots of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, was the scene of an alarming conflagration It appears that two crude oil tank cars were wrecked, which flooded the ground for a considerable distance in the vicinity of the track, under a freight train and several passenger cars. A cinder from a passing locomotive ignited the oil which set fire to several parts of the train. Upwards of 100 cars, with their contents, were consumed, and the loss to the company was very heavy. The town and a large quantity of coal and lumber were saved with difficulty.

SEWING MACHINES.

SOME OF THE REASONS WHY THE

WEED SEWING MACHINE

Is rapidly taking the precedence as the only

UNIVERSAL "FAMILY FAVORITE"

IT HAS THE LEAST "NUMBER OF PARTS."
IT RUNS EASIER.
IT HAS THE MOST AND FINEST ATTACHMENTS.
IT HAS A NEEDLE BETTER.
IT HAS A THUMB SCREW TO FASTEN THE NEEDLE.

A careful examination will substantiate the above facts and secure its sale.

JUST OUT!

THE NEW

Wheeler & Wilson SEWING MACHINE.

THE WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine Company, having held eight or ten years to perfect its manufacturing and selling Sewing Machines and employing the ablest mechanical talent in this country and in Europe now offer to the public confident that it possesses all the advantages which experience has shown to be essential to a Perfect Sewing Machine.

The principle is the same as in the old Wheeler & Wilson Machine, but changes have been made which increase its efficiency, while at the same time less care and skill are required in its management. Seams are crossed with ease. The work guided with entirely new effect. Nearly double its former power. No under-tension to manage. Every joint can be tightened as fast as it wears

We recommend our customers in the country to purchase their machines direct from our Agents, as the price is the same as at our offices, and they can thus secure, at their own homes, the necessary instructions. Agents wanted
